Bradley criticizes Olympics

Ponder is Man of Year

CHARLESTON— P.J. (Pete) Ponder was named Man of the Year Friday night at the seventh annual Man of the Year Banquet sponsored by the Lions Club at the armory.

Approximately 150 persons attended the banquet, including Bill Bradley of Crystal City, a member of the champion New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association, who was guest speaker.

Ponder, who was born in Mississippi County, is an active member in civic affairs. He was a member of the City Council for six years, serving one year as mayor, and was a member of Chamber of Commerce board of directors. He is chairman and long- time member of the Industrial Development Committee and was chairman of the United Fund.

He is a past Kiwanis Club member and serves as board member and youth counselor of the United Methodist Church. He served as a scoutmaster for 10 years and was scout commissioner for several years. He was also chairman of scout transportation.

He was an honorary colonel on the staff of former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, and in April he was elected to serve on the City Council.

He is owner of Ponder Chevrolet and Buick Co.

Hearnes introduced Bradley, a former Rhodes scholar who is extremely interested in Missouri politics. Bradley said a young person just beginning in politics can admire Hearnes "not for what he has talked about, but for what he has done." He said he hopes Hearnes will serve again in public office.

Bradley's brief speech focused on the Olympic games. Bradley was a member of the 1964 U.S. Olympic basketball team which won the gold medal at the Tokyo games. Citing unfair practices in past games, Bradley listed five changes that should be made to improve the games in the future

First, he said discrimination against capitalistic countries must end. He further stated that team sports should be abolished. "There must be a thrust away from nationalism. It's easy to play war games. The original Olympics were held for individuals to compete among themselves."

Thirdly, Bradley said we must "clean up our home", meaning the United States Olympic Committee. The U.S. effort is paid for by the people and occasionally institutions. Bradley said the committee should be made to give an accounting of how the money is spent.

He said the selection of coaches and officials should be open and above board. "We must get the most able coach, the most able administrator."

Fourthly, the Olympics should be more participant oriented. The games should be extended to a two- to-three month period. Bradley believes gold medals should be given only to those who beat Olympic records, and that the medal ceremony be held at the end of the Olympics. "The person should have the opportunity to receive the medal as do college graduates in the mail or receive it at the awards presentation ceremonies.

The last change Bradley would make is that the games would be permanently located in the country in which they originated and be financed by industrialized nations.

Discussion of these changes should begin, Bradley stated, and the alternatives should be studied.

"The hope for '76 must begin now. I hope you'll consider it."

The 29- year- old bachelor graduated from Crystal City High in 1961, and was an All- American basketball player for two years at Princeton University. After graduation from Princeton in 1965, Bradley went to Oxford University in England on a Rhodes Scholarship and received a master's degree in 1968. He joined the Knickerbockers in 1967.

Bradley is director of South Forty, a nonprofit organization involved in providing vocational and educational training for prison inmates, and is a First Lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force Reserve.

Federal court rules

State abortion law unconstitutional

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A three-judge federal court panel says Missouri's law on abortions is unconstitutional.

The state statute says an abortion is a felony unless it is required to save the life of the mother or of the unborn child. There are different penalties for the death of a "quick" and "unquick" fetus.

"There can be no question that this Missouri statute is unconstitutional under the teachings of the two Supreme Court cases which we were mandated to consider," the panel stated in its decision.

The judges were Floyd R. Gibson of the 8th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals; Elmo B. Hunter and William R. Collison of district court.

The panel's ruling was in a case entitled "Rodgers vs. Danforth," in which nine Missouri citizens challenged the constitutionality of the law and the position of John C. Danforth, state attorney general. Danforth, in several informal statements, upheld the Missouri abortion law, although he advised prosecutors not to enforce it until the federal courts ruled on its constitutionality.

The federal panel said the attorney general's argument was that the Supreme Court did not determine "whether an unborn child is human life."

"This court finds that the Supreme Court decision completely contradicts this argument," the panel added, citing the high court's language stating "We need not resolve the difficult question of when life begins."

"No statement could be clearer. Whether life begins at conception, at quickening, at viability, or at birth, the court held the resolution of this question would not affect the decision," the panel stated.

"In this case the attorney general has not given 'full recognition' for 'credence' to the ruling of the Supreme Court," the panel said.

The plaintiffs included four physicians, three clergymen and two married women.

The doctors were Samuel U. Rodgers and Dan L. Berger of Kansas City, David Rothman of St. Louis and David Hall of Columbia. They contended the state law prevented them from praticing medicine in "its wisest and most healthful manner."

The clergymen were Raymond B. Bragg and Robert H. Craft of Kansas City, and Rabbi Elvin D. Rubin of St. Louis. They said they were not able to counsel effectively on the alternative of abortion to continued pregnancy.

The women, Mrs. Susan Halverstadt and Mrs. Sally Steinbach of Kansas City, said the law prevented family planning.

Their case was filed originally in federal court in 1970. The three-judge panel dismissed the case last September, saying the law had not been tested in state courts.

In court system

Bar proposes change

The Missouri Bar made public Friday a proposal to substantially revise the state's laws on the judiciary, which the bar's court modernization committee spent two years in drafting.

The plan, which has been neither approved nor disapproved, has been sent to bar members for comments and suggestions.

A public meeting is scheduled June 8 at 2 p.m. at Ramada Inn for lawyers and other interested persons of this area to explain the proposed judicial article.

Also released Friday was a copy of a minority report, which was offered as a substitute plan for revision of the state's judicial article.

The committee proposal would abolish special courts and special classes of judges and create a uniform, state-supported judiciary under the control of the state Supreme Court.

A judicial council would be set up to create or alter judicial circuits, including the addition or deletion of judgeships for circuit and appellate courts. The legislature performs this function at present.

The council would present a yearly state judicial budget to the legislature. An independent judicial salary commission is recommended to set judicial salaries and retirement benefits.

Merit selection of judges would be maintained, but for the Appellate Judicial Commission the attorney general would appoint the members, rather than the governor. The governor would still select judges from nominees chosen by the commission.

Merit selection would be extended to all trial judges, with the selection of trial judges by a circuit commission and retention by non- partisan ballot. Mandatory retirement would be age 70.

The only mandatory appellate jurisicition for the Supreme Court would be criminal cases wherein the death penalty or life in prison is given.

A single trial court would be created with jurisdiction over cases now handled by circuit courts, courts of common pleas, St. Louis Court of Criminal Corrections, magistrate courts, probate courts and municipal courts.

Deleted from the present law would be the requirement that circuits be made of contiguous counties and that judges be residents of the circuits at the time of their selection.

The bar association hopes to present the proposed judicial article to the voters in 1974.

2 jailed in burglary

NEW MADRID — Two Steele men, Richard Hastings, 19, and Waymond Dunca, 22, are being held in Pemiscot County jail in Caruthersville for New Madrid County after they were caught about 4:30 a.m. Friday burglarizing the Neon Bar on Main Street in Lilbourn.

Deputy Sheriff Walter Ivy, who investigated with Lilbourn marshal Fred Roe, said Sam Dillard, owner and operator of S and A Tobacco Store next door to the bar, apprehended the men when he heard them in the building.

Dillard and Larry Joe Holtzhouser, owner of the bar, then held the men until officers arrived.

The pair had entered the building through a back door, Deputy Ivy said.

They waived preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court on a charge of breaking and entering with intent to steal.

Judge Leo Hedgepeth ordered them held for Circuit Court trial under $1,000 bond each.

NO MORE BOYS
OR GIRLS SCHOOLS?

It is sad — and more than a little alarming — to read the Associated Press dispatch from Washington that "About 150 Predominently or exclusively male and female colleges, including some of the most prestigious in the nation, must explain by early summer delays in totally eliminating "sex discrimination" in admissions."

The dispatch went on to say that government "guidelines" (not orders?) have been mailed to the educational institutions in 33 states by the U. S. Office of Education. Failure to comply invites loss of all Federal "aid."

What has happened in our land to freedom of choice? Exclusively boys, and exclusively girls schools have played a major and distinguished role in the building of our country. And now we are told that what we have been doing these past 200 years is all wrong? If it was wrong for parents to decide that their sons and daughters could achieve the most by studying in an exclusively boys or girls school, why did it take so long to find out?

This latest move by the Office of Education is a prime example that the power to tax is the power to destroy freedom of choice. Earnings and income which might have been used to pay for tuition is extracted by the government in the form of taxes. That money is then sent to the schools (in the form of "aid") by the government. But now the funds carry the taint of government control over what is to be taught, who is to teach, who can be taught, and who is to be allowed to sit in the same classroom. How much longer will it be before all income is controlled and no freedom of choice will remain?

Retail advertising carries benefits which may be just as important to some merchants as increased sales volume. One valuable effect of good advertising is the increase in efficiency of a retail operation.

The manager of a booming chain of supermarkets says that he would have to more than double his employment costs if newspaper advertising were not available.

"The supermarket would not be an efficient method of retailing if advertising did not carry a big part of the sales burden. The housewife is able to buy with little assistance because she is acquainted with our products and prices when she arrives," the grocery executive said.

"When we evaluate our advertising we always consider the fact that it would take an army of salesmen to handle the questions which can be answered in one newspaper advertisement ..."

These comments do not apply to supermarkets alone. Advertising reduces selling time in any type of store. The potential buyer of an advertised product is always sold when he enters a store, he knows what he wants and where he can get it.

In fact, when man- hours saved are converted to dollars, newspaper advertising is practically free as compared to the cost of personal selling.

No wonder the consumer expects to find the best prices in stores that advertise. The stores which cut costs through advertising are able to pass the savings from modern selling methods on to their customers.

"THE GOOD OLD DAYS"

Editor, Sam Pitner, of the Carrollton Conservative, says he has a hankering to write a book someday about the times before World War II. "It seems to me," he editorialized recently, "that the end of the war was the end of an era in our country. Life has never been quite the same.

"I remember in high school wanting a job so bad that I offered to work in the local grocery store for almost nothing. I got the job — and a salary yet. Fifteen bucks a week from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily and until 10 p.m. on Saturdays. Man, did we work! There were no benefits, no Thursday afternoons off, no coffee breaks, just work. But I banked the whole fifteen bucks while living with my folks. It was sort of a status symbol in those days to have a good job and be a little independent.

"When my Dad built his home during those depression years, the best labor could be obtained for $1.25 a day. He went to Louisiana to get the kind of wood he wanted for that house, and there was lots of joking about it at the time. But that timber is as good today as it was then.

"Then the war came. They were tragic years, but we were held together by a great common bond and by a loving concern for our neighbors and friends. After the war, there was no going back to the old days, and it has never been the same and never will be. People are different, attitudes are different, goals and values have changed."

Of course, what happened was that during — and after — World War II we all got "rich"; at least, there has been a lot more money around, even if it goes in one pocket and out the other. In the days Sam Pitner speaks of, money was hard to find; if you found a little, you had a lot, and it didn't slide through your fingers like it does now. And Sam isn't the only fellow to wonder out loud if all that extra money we have floating around these days has really made us any happier!

SUPPRESSING MOVES
TO END SUPPRESSION

The right to be employed without having to join and financially support a union would seem like a fundamental liberty in this country — but it isn't. The Taft- Hartley Act coerces workers to belong to an organization that can have extensive control over their lives and livelihood — unless states specifically decide to balance the right to join with the right not to join.

Rep. Vic Downing, Bragg City Democrat, probably recognized the stranglehold that union bosses have on many legislators when he offered an amendment to a resolution that would have allowed the state's voters to decide on putting a right- to-work amendment in the state constitution.

He knew that many spineless legislators would ignore the wishes of their constituents and oppose the resolution as it existed. So he proposed that the resolution be changed to let each county decide if it wanted the right - to - work option. What could be more democratic?

But meanwhile, Rep. Earl Schlef, the Dellwood Democrat who is chairman of the House Labor Committee, had the audacity to bury a second right- to - work measure, sponsored by Downing, even further into the legislative ooze. The legislation (which is separate from the resolution and would accomplish right- to - work by legislative action instead of through an amendment to the state constitution) has been bottled up by Schlef at his committee level until now. But, just to make sure the patient is truly dead, he consigned it to further burial at the subcommittee level for "further study."

Schlef doesn't have the guts even to present the bill to a union - oriented legislature. He apparently is afraid that by some fluke the bill might be approved.

Of course, any constitutional change submitted to the voters would be passed overwlelmingly, just as any bill would be if legislators respected the wishes of their constituents - a survey by Leslie Brooks & Associates of Tulsa, Okla., last year showed 77 per cent of Missourians favor right- to -work; a national survey by the Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, J.J., showed 62 per cent of Americans favor the free choice of joining or not joining a union.

It's no wonder that legislators like Schlef want to suppress legislation to end suppression? it's no wonder they fear submitting a democratic measure to the voters for their choice in a democratic vote; and it will be little wonder if they try to buy the resolution so they won't have to vote against the constituent's wishes.

AUTO THEFT
MOVING TO
SMALL TOWNS

Always considered a big city crime in the past, auto theft is on the decrease in major population centers and a new trend, increases in small communities, has appeared.

The 1972 Uniform Crime preliminary report, recently issued by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, revealed a seven per cent reduction in country wide auto theft over the prior year. This is the first such reduction in over a decade.

The dramatic auto theft reduction in the nation's largest cities is the major contributing gactor in the large overall decrease. In cities with a population between 500,000 and one million, auto thefts in 1972 were down 11 per cent and in cities with over a million inhabitants, these thefts dropped by 14 per cent.

According to the FBI report, cities and towns in all population groups above 10,000 experienced auto theft decreases last year. The only exceptions were communities with fewer than 10,000 residents. The FBI's Crime Index Trend indicates an increase of two per cent in these small towns.

"Auto theft can be controlled," said a spokesman for a large insurance firm in commenting on the FBI report. "This has been proved over and over in public information campaigns conducted by our company and other organizations. Motorists in the larger cities where we have conducted programs have helped to reduce the auto theft rate by locking their cars and taking the keys. Now that same message must be brought to the people in the small communities."

If automobile owners will take the following precautionary steps, car thefts can be reduced, regardless of the size of the city or town:

1. When leaving your car unattended, lock the ignition, close the windows, and lock all the doors; then take your keys with you.

2. Don't give in to the impulse, found common in small towns, of leaving the engine running during quick-stop errands, thereby making your car a target for a thief.

3. At night, park in lighted, well-traveled areas, preferably near a street light.

4. Do not leave valuables where they can be seen in the car.

5. Be on the lookout for suspicious people lingering around newer cars. Alert police. Do not try to apprehend a suspicious individual.

6. Identify your own car by dropping your business card down into the door panel through the window slot or by placing a secret identifying a mark somewhere on the car.

Best advice: Lock it and pocket the key.

THE WATERGATE
MENTALITY AND THE
ELLSBERG CASE

The outcome of the Pentagon Papers trial has to be one of the most outrageous anticlimaxes in the history of American justice.

For while the case against Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo is now dead (as one of the prosecuting attorneys noted sadly), the larger questions raised are not to be answered. Instead, the amoral cynicism that led to Watergate proved operative in the Ellsberg case, too. So the judge, quite properly, brought the trial to an abrupt end and the two men, accused of espionage, theft and conspiracy to defraud the government, cannot be tried again.

So that, we assume, is that, although the defendants have threatened to go ahead with some legal actions of their own, a procedure that seems wholly unnecessary. Meantime, the public is denied the judicial enlightenment that might have resulted had the trial been carried to the point of a jury verdict.

What, for example, about that foggy area of the law that is the government's system of document classification? At what point does the secrecy syndrome conflict with or threaten the First Amendment and the people's right to know?

In the minds of the jury, did publication of the papers actually give aid to the enemy, or was this stuff of past history the rightful possession of the people, not just of their government?

Questions, but no answers, and for reasons all too apparent: Because stupid, conspiratorial men saw fit to invade a psychiatrist's office; and because FBI wire taps picked up some of Ellsberg's conversations in 1969 and 1970. "Bizarre events," said Judge Byrne. Bizarre indeed, and outrageous.

Outrageous to the degree that the men who perpetrated those events displayed a total disregard for the system of justice and for the branch of government charged with carrying out that system. Yet in the end, the court let the executive branch know that it was not to be bamboozled, and that, come to think of it, must restore some of the confidence that has been lost in these frightening days of Watergate revelation.

SYMBOL OF

Prior to the World Shooting Championship Matches that were held at Phoenix, Arizona, under the sponsorship of the National Rifle Association, strong antifirearms advocates opposed recognition or support of the matches by the U. S. government. It would appear that the idea behind such opposition was to further discredit private citizens and others who believe in the fundamental right of citizen gun ownership.

Fortunately, the Defense Department authorized the Army to assist in the conduct of the matches which attracted some 2,000 of the world's best rifle, pistol and shotgun shooters from some 60 foreign nations. The Navy and Air Force also contributed. Thus, although the NRA, through donations from individual members, footed all but a very small part of the million dollar cost of hosting this major international sporting event, U. S. gun owners can feel a little more secure in the knowledge that U. S. military leaders still recognize the importance of firearms training and marksmanship to U. S. prestige and security.

From the day the U. S. became a nation, our citizens have enjoyed a greater measure of freedom than any other people in history. With that freedom came certain responsibilities - respect for law and property and the exercise of the initiative and judgment required of any self-governing people. The crusade against gun ownership, in reality, has been a crusade against one of the essential features of responsible citizenship.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

New Team Working:
Nixon- Brennan Combo
First Move:
Counterattacking Powerful Meany

WASHINGTON— Reports of the President's political death are inoperative and exaggerated though they make good copy.

Certainly it's not quite normal in the White House. And breakfast is agitated and purple punctuated. But there's a return to normalcy. And normalcy means the President, in his fashion, is set for the counterattack. With Dick Nixon, it's all timing.

Take 3:20 p.m. last Tuesday. He was doing what comes naturally--- operating by gut. He telephoned George Shultz, his scrutable assistant president. It was a private talk. Could have been something about bringing down the price of lumber. And making an appointment for the next afternoon. They could have discussed labor chief George Meany who is having a ball bawling out and clobbering the President.

With labor's chief of chiefs tailgating Watergate, Mr. Nixon, it can be reported, has decided to take him on in what looks like a finish fight. Heavyweight Meany never has lost a bout, but the man who hasn't lost one hasn't fought one. So it appears that the labor chief is the first of the major forces the President has decided to tackle in this tragic turmoil.

Meany's basic strength is the building and construction trades--- the so- called hard hats. In May 1970, they came out of the iron and woodwork to rally to Mr. Nixon. Today, almost exactly three years later, the Presdient is turning to them again. His business agent is Labor Secretary Pete Brennan, who is slugging it out with Meany and is using some of the fastest political footwork I've encountered.

There's no doubt Pete is running interference for Dick Nixon. When Meany accused Brennan, former hard- hat leader, of selling out, the President said:

"Pete Brennan never sells out on anything."

After Meany slashed at the President's foreign policy during a speech at the Congressional Medal of Honor Society dinner recently, especially on foreign trade policy (which brought a letter of apology to the President from the society's leader), Brennan told the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, "Now that the President has brushed the cobwebs out of our foreign policy and opened doors to Russia and China, we see the chance of great new markets for the products of American factories and farms."

When Meany beat a tattoo against President Nixon's foreign trade policy, Brennan went up the hill to testify that the "facts do not support (the charge that)... imports cause large- scale unemployment... (Imports) do, of course, cause some job displacements, but I think we should not confuse these adjustment problems with the problem of large- scale unemployment."

Thus, Pete hit Meany in one of his most sensitive programs, the passage of the Burke—Hartke bill to control overseas investments and management of the nation's major corporations such as GE, GM, Ford and ITT.

"Burke- Hartke," it should be understood, is the name of the game for labor for the next few years. Meany and steel union chief Abe Abel and electrical and electronics union leader Paul Jennings have charged that imports have cost America over a million jobs. And labor papers have begun shouting editorially, "So long, Pete" and "Pete, quit!"

Add this to the new minimum wage fight (Republican Congressmen now are negotiating directly with the AFL— CIO lobbyist Ken Young on whether there should be a $2- an- hour minimum or $2.20 immediately) and you have another round of battle. Meany began charging Brennan with sellout after Pete differed with him about sub- minimums for young workers.

And then came the big Israeli Silver Anniversary testimonial dinner to the Teamsters' general president Frank (Fitz) Fitzsimmons on May 10. Pete Brennan, scoffing at reports he now carries a pistol, was right out front. He jabbed all through the appetizer and main course. He showed the flag, as the British say. Meany hates Fitz. The Teamsters' chief thinks even less of Meany. But there was the President's Secretary of Labor Brennan right alongside Fitz with other Cabinet members that night in the gay Washington Hilton main ballroom.

Pete added injury to insult by announcing that the workers don't want a price freeze--- for which Meany has called in a hundred statements.

And as Fitz got the Israel Silver Anniversary Award, "for service in the cause of Israel's development," Brennan said of the top Teamster on whom Meany had just declared war in the California fields: "He's a real man. He's got guts and he's shown it and I'm happy we're both Americans and both Irish."

Peter Brennan of Hell's Kitchen was telling it like it is for him and President Nixon. The President approved. Could be he prompted it.

Brennan speaks for the President--- with the advice and consent and encouragement of Dick Nixon. Look at this crossfire multidimensionally. It's Dick and Pete. They're close friends. Their relationship goes far beyond labor relations.

Brennan, as the No. 1 hard hat, put the "troops" into the street to save the President's policies three years ago. He's on the same warpath now, though he's now in the Cabinet. The President sanctions this confrontation with Meany, easily one of the nation's most powerful men now, if not the most powerful. The President has felt the whiplash and razor edge of this power.

If the President were inoperative would he tackle Meany? If Dick Nixon were contemplating resignation, or the White House weren't functioning, would he take on the nation's most powerful political machine---- Meany's? Certainly Watergate actually has just begun to stink.

Certainly Dick Nixon is in weird trouble, yes. Inoperative, no.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Martha

WASHINGTON — Women across the country have bombarded us with questions about Martha Mitchell. Is the Nixon administration trying to "put her away" for speaking out? Will she stand by her indicted husband, ex- Attorney General John Mitchell? What is she really like?

John and Martha Mitchell began their life together rather suddenly. "John just walked in one morning and asked for a divorce," his former wife, Betty, has said. The divorce was granted in Reno on December 19, 1957. Less than a week later, John and Martha exchanged vows in Elkton, Md., a border town then known for its quickie marriages.

The bride, mother of a 10-year- old son, got her divorce three months earlier in Miami. She hired a private detective, William Poler, to snoop on her former husband. In court, the detective testified at one point that Martha "was neurotic. Excuse the expression. She was sick and all mixed up."

Her former husband, Clyde Jennings, has described her personality as volatile. "She would have a few drinks and talk down to people," he said. "She gave the headwaiters a bad time, taxi drivers, doormen, anyone who was menial. It was an insecurity problem."

Her famous late- night phone- calls got a rise out of Jennings. "It was neighborhood stuff then," he said."now she has a national forum."

As she has loudly complained, a security guard ripped out her phone and gave her a tranquilizer injection in the bottom in June 1972. Friends of John Mitchell say the guard was merely following instructions. Allegedly, she was close to a nervous breakdown and Mitchell wanted to keep her quiet. Those who know Martha say her thoughts are always at the tip of her tongue and she has few inhibitions.

A few days ago, we spoke to Mitchell about his irrepressible wife. He swore to us that he left public life to save their marriage and that they are now getting along happily. For her part, Martha has loudly protested her husband's innocence and has shown every sign of standing by him.

But friends of the Mitchells tell us the marriage is breaking up. "If John goes to prison," predicts one intimate, "Martha will pack her bags and clear out."

But no one really knows, from day to day, what Martha Mitchell will do next.

FBI, JR.: Antipoverty czar Howard Phillips, who has been blocked by the courts from dismantling his own agency, has turned it, meanwhile, into a miniature FBI to spy on the poor.

His chief inspector is Eric Biddle, an ex-CIA man, who has surrounded himself with former professional snoops from the FBI, CIA, Army intelligence and police security squads.

Our own spies have shown us the confidential personnel forms of seven "consultants," known irreverently inside the agency as the Magnificent Seven, who helped Biddle guide his two dozen inspectors. This small force, like the seven who oversaw them, is loaded with ex- FBI types.

Meet the Magnificent Seven:

-- RAY McCONNON: He served more than 13 weeks with the CIA as an intelligence analyst, also did investigative work for the House Internal Security Committee. On his data sheet, Biddle wrote: "Investigative experience is necessary for this work. Subject has requisite investigative experience." Despite Biddle's confidence in him, McConnon proved to be such an embarrassment on his first assignment to Louisville, Ky., that his consultant job was terminated immediately upon his return to Washington. He created an incident, say our sources, over the discovery of an Angela Davis poster taped to an employe's wall. McConnon would tell us only: "I have no squawk. There was no racist incident."

-- PETER SPALDING: Until last January, he was engaged in "planning, briefing and coordination of investigations with the FBI and the CIA" for Army intelligence.

-- EARL MORGAN: In the early 1950s he "directed activities of employes in the fields of counterespionage, countersubversion, personnel security investigations and security and surveys and inspections." From 1965 to 1972, he worked in Army counterintelligence.

-- GERALD CRAWFORD: He put in over 20 years in Army intelligence handling "security investigations, counterintelligence services and sensitive classified operations." He recently quit the government to take an investigative job in New Jersey.

-- RENE FRANCAZI: He had "over 30 years experience as an investigator" for Army intelligence, retired as a full colonel in 1970. He has now left the antipoverty agency.

-- THOMAS FITZPATRICK and ROBERT HILDENBRANDT: Both are ex- police supersleuths from California. Fitzpatrick was director of intelligence for the San Francisco Police Department; Hildenbrandt was Modoc county's chief deputy sheriff in charge of investigations.

What's the Law?

The lolly pop

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

While Mr. Dinkle couldn't tell you the value of an education, he certainly could tell you the cost. Based upon his son's agreement to repay him, he sent his son through college and dental school and it cost plently. Consequently, after his son had gathered together enough magazines to open his office and enought patients to read them. Mr. Dinkle requested repayment. His son, however, refused to acknowledge that he owed his father a single penny.

"I've heard of kids working their way through college," Mr. Dinkle told his son, "but working a father through college is absolutely wrong. When you graduated from high school at 18 you promised to repay me if I sent you to dental school and you promised again when you graduated from college at 22. Now, I insist that you keep your promise."

"Sorry," was his son's answer, "but you had no legal obligation to send me anywhere. When a father chooses to educate his son, he does so out of the goodness of his heart. Consequently, while you've been a real lollypop, and I appreciate it, I owe you nothing."

Feeling more like a sucker than a lollypop, Mr. Dinkle sued his son for repayment.

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a son can be held liable for the cost of his higher education paid for by his father where he agrees to so repay his father and ratifies that agreement after he reaches his majority. In this case, concluded the judge, Mr. Dinkle's son agreed to reimburse Mr. Dinkle and ratified that agreement after he reached the age of 21.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

So I run straight toward the goal in order to win the prize, which is God's call through Christ Jesus to the life above. [Philippians 3:14]

PRAYER: Father, may we not turn back from following Christ because we love the pleasures of this present world more than we do Him. Strengthen us in faith and give us the spirit to follow Him. Amen.

Ann Landers

Heart patient wants to join wife swappers

Dear Ann Landers: I have read the comments about rude salespeople, waitresses, telephone operators, etc. I wonder if the complainers realize how they come across to others?

I've encountered many snippy salespeople and an equal number who are friendly and considerate. The same goes for bank tellers, parking lot attendants and cashiers. I've discovered that most people react to the way I treat THEM.

If I've had a bad day I have a tendency to be abrupt and impatient. People react to my impatience and I get treated the same way. So I concentrate on being pleasant, no matter what kind of day I've had. Before long I notice that my attitude is contagious.

When I encounter rudeness I say to myself, "Maybe he is having a hard time." I've never met a person whose life is 100 per cent trouble- free. Have you?--- Foreman In Flint

Dear Foreman: Your letter embodies a philosophy so simple it seems unworkable. But it does work, and it is the never- failing key to compassion.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a professional man in his late 40s. Throughout our marriage he had always been exceptionally kind, considerate, and highly moral. Several months ago he suffered a severe heart attack. Today he is a different person. I irritate him and the children irritate him. He demands our devotion, yet he rebuffs us, goes off by himself, is sullen and moody, and, worst of all, he has now insisted that we join a couple-swapping group.

His doctor treats the "change" casually and says, "Be patient." (He doesn't know about the latest demand.) I love my husband dearly but I can't cope with his new personality. In his present state of mind I'm afraid to suggest counseling. Yet our whole marriage is dissolving. What can I do?--- Mrs. Desperate

Dear Mrs.: Go back to your husband's doctor and give him ALL the facts. Your husband has undergone a serious personality change. A neurological examination would do no harm and it might cast a new light on the situation.

Are you, or someone you care about messing around with drugs-- or considering it? Are all drugs bad? What about pot--- in moderation; Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs," separates the facts from the fiction. For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill, plus a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope, (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Dogs, Hawks upset

VAN BUREN — The Hayti Indians rode the big bat of Danny White and pitching of Bob Alexander to a 7-1 victory over the Van Buren Bulldogs while lefthander Jim Noon pitched the Illmo- Scott City Rams past the Kelly Hawks 4-1 in 10 innings here Friday afternoon in the semi- finals of the State Regional baseball tournament.

Van Buren got off to a good start against winning pitcher Bob Alexander as shortstop Darrell Marshall of the Bulldogs wholloped a homerun in the bottom of the first inning but the rejoicing was short lived as the Indians came roaring back in the top of the second inning and put together four singles to knock in five runs before the side could be retired and the Indians led 5-1 and were never threatened after that as Alexander and White held the previously undefeated Bulldogs to two singles after the first inning. Alexander hurt his ankle sliding into third base in the fifth inning and White took over and held the Bulldogs in check the last two frames.

Danny White was the hitting star with three hits in three times at bat and three runs batted in. Carl Nicholson was the starting and losing pitcher for Van Buren. Nicholson fanned seven in the losing cause and Alexander and White combined for seven strikeouts.

The second game of the doubleheader was a cliffhanger from the beginning until the tenth frame.

Losing pitcher Kenny Urhahn and southpaw Jim Noon hooked up in a classic duel with Noon getting the better of things in the end.

Kelly jumped on top first as the Hawks started the game in the bottom of the first frame after Urhahn had set the Rams down without a run in the top half of the first.

Rich Urhahn led the inning off with a walk and was sacrificed to second. A fielders choice pushed him to third from where he scored on Jeff Jackson's single.

ISC tied the game in the top of the third when second baseman Randy Bohn walked and stole second. On the attempt to nail the runner the ball went into centerfield where the centerfielder let the ball get through his legs and Bohn came home.

In the bottom of the third, centerfielder Robert Killian robbed Kenny Urhahn of a homerun with a leaping catch at the fence.

Noon and Urhahn had no trouble with the opposing batters until the top of the tenth when Randy Bohn led the inning off with a single and went to second on a fielders choice.

With runners on first and third with one out the Rams were given an intentional pass to load the bases. Urhahn fanned the next batter and with two out the strategy backfired as Urhahn walked Linn Ward, forcing in, what turned out to be the winning run and Vince Shafer followed Ward with a walk forcing in the second run in the inning, then Glynn Ward singled to drive in the third run and the fourth runner was thrown out to end the inning.

Noon set the Hawks down in the bottom of the tenth without any trouble. Noon fanned 15 Hawks and gave up only two base hits. Urhahn struckout 13 and allowed five hits.

Hayti will send Randy Gardner to the mound Saturday afternoon against the ISC Rams' Don Crews.

Hayti or ISC will represent Southeast Missouri in the semi- finals of the State baseball tournament in Springfield, next week.

TRCC to nationals

POPLAR BLUFF— Three Rivers Community College is bidding to become a dominating factor in the Junior College sports ranks after their Raiders baseball team claimed the Central District tournament title at McAlister, Kansas to qualify for the nationals at Grand Junction, Colo., May 26.

It marks the first trip for the TRCC baseball men to the national playoffs. TRCC's basketball team finished fifth in the nation back in March and two seasons ago claimed fourth.

The big plus to the Raiders teams is the use of area athletes. 75 percent of the teams are made up of Bootheel school boy stars.

Oran's Bradley Emerson and Randy Smith of Arbyrd were named to the all-central district all- star squad.

Pitching paved the way for the Raiders victories with Mike Hill, Randy Smith, Mark Hildebrand and Mike Webber handling the chores for TRCC.

Eight teams will compete in the nationals. The Raiders defeated St. Johns of Winfield, Kan., Becone of Meskogee, Okla., and Lamar Junior College of Lamar, Colo.

It was announced this week that the Raiders, with a 25- 11 record, received the schools first national ranking. TRCC was rated ninth in the final season poll. San Jacinto College of Pasadena, Texas is tied for first with Gulf Coast Community College of Panama City, Florida.

Oran defeated the Benton Aces Wednesday night in a SEMO softball league game 2-1.

Oran is 4-0 for the year and two runs in the first inning was enough for Don Robert, the winning pitcher. Robert fanned 16 Aces enroute to the victory. Ray Scherer struckout seven in taking the loss for Benton.

Oran scored the two runs with the help of a hit, fielders choice, walk, stolen base, and an error. Benton scored their run on a hit and error.

Charlie Urhahn and Kirby Hahn had the only hits for Oran. Benton was held to only three safties.

Oran plays a doubleheader with Flat River Saturday night.

Stop further damage by cleaning

By EDWARD J. CONSTIEN,
Extension Agricultural Engineer

Complete and early cleaning of farm machinery partially or completely covered by flood waters will stop further damage to the machinery. Before trying to operate any machinery inspect it carefully and remove all dirt and debris.

Bearings should receive special attention. Silt and clay particles carried in flood waters are small enough to get between bearings and other close fitting parts. Sealed bearings should be closely checked. Some bearings can be cleaned by forcing grease through them until a considerable amount has oozed out from the sides of the bearings. Most bearings, however, should be taken apart and cleaned with kerosene or a solvent. Fine silt will cause rapid wear if it is not removed.

Chains, gears, and sprockets should be cleaned and then covered with a light oil. Exposed metal parts such as plow moldboards should be cleaned and recovered with a rust preventive. Check sickles on combines and mowers for silt and debris.

After cleaning the bearings and other parts carefully turn over the turning parts of the machine by hand to make sure they work freely.

Planting cotton

Now: new nematode protection for Southern soybeans.

Nemagon® soil fumigant helps you bring in a healthy, high-yield soybean crop—by controlling nematodes in your field.

Nematodes can cause yellowing, stunting, and wilting. And they can cut your soybean yields drastically.

Nemagon helps keep yields high because it stops nematodes before they can damage your soybeans. Nemagon gives you top-notch control of nematodes—including the tough customers like soybean cyst nematode and root knot nematode.

What's more, Nemagon is economical. Just one application per season—either pre-plant or at planting—will give you effective control.

Nemagon goes on easy, too. You can use conventional fumigant injection equipment, or convert your present liquid fertilizer applicator or weed sprayer at a minimal cost. For more information on Nemagon—and how to convert your present equipment—contact your local dealer or Shell.

With today's high return on soybeans, don't risk big losses due to nematodes. Keep your yields up with Nemagon.

Shell Chemical Company, Agricultural Division. 5575 Poplar Avenue, Memphis, Tennessee 38117.

Always read the Nemagon label before using and follow directions carefully.

Successful farming due to character, desire, ability

By NADINE S. TOWNSEND

PARMA— How does a young man who started as a "scratch" farmer-- no land, no machinery and no money to invest--- in five years develop a full- scale farming operation of 650 acres, acquire a sizeable amount of costly machinery, buy a home and also 80 acres of land?

In 1967, the only things young Oscar Sapp, then 22 and newly married, had going for him were his training and experience gained from being reared on a farm, his character, desire and ability to farm and his need, which qualified him for 100 per cent financial backing by Farmers Home Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Following his marriage to Donna Hoggard of Parma on Aug. 12, 1967, Sapp was able to rent three tracts of land totaling 440 acres. FHA then provided a $12,500 loan, repayable in seven years, for him to buy two tractors, two discs, two cultivators, two breaking plows and a planter. Also, a crop loan was made for seed, fertilizer and family living expense.

Three years later, Sapp obtained a $6,500 FHA loan for a chisel plow and another tractor, to add to equipment he had bought between 1968 and 1970, consisting of two cotton pickers, a combine, four cotton trailers, a grain buggy, ton and a half truck, six- row hipper, rotary hoe and a premerge outfit.

In 1969, a FHA home ownership loan was made to enable the Sapps to buy a modern two bedroom home on Townley road in Parma.

With a $6,500 FHA loan in 1972, Sapp acquired some necessary irrigation equipment, a planter, two cultivators, a tractor and a flip- over plow.

As a result of Sapp's successful farming practices and industriousness, he has maintained a good credit rating and, in addition to these loans, has repaid annually crop loans advanced by FHA for seed, fertilizer and family living.

In April, Sapp took the first step to achieve what every farmer strives for-- his own farm land. Using a $23,000 FHA loan and $14,000 borrowed from another source, he was able to buy his first 80 acres three miles southeast of Parma.

His farming acreage this year is within a five- mile radius. He has 70 acres of wheat planted, between 30 and 40 acres of cotton which, weather permitting, will be increased to 100 acres, and the balance of land will be planted in soybeans.

The Sapps have two children, Misty Dawn, 3, and Keith Rodney, two months.

Mrs. Sapp continued her college education after marraige and graduated from Arkansas State University in Jonesboro, Ark. She taught vocal music for two years at Campbell before the birth of their son, and will teach there in the current summer school program.

The family attends the United Methodist Church in Parma, and Sapp is a member of the Masonic Lodge.

Sapp, recalling efforts to start his farm operations, shook his head in disbelief, saying, "It looked impossible to get started," then firmly stated, "my biggest help of all has been the good Lord."

For his irrigation efforts Grindstaff will receive a certificate of merit. He planted P— A— G Seed Co. SX 93 hybrid seed to win his award.

Financial Management Workshop

Production Credit Association representatives from Scott, Mississippi, Bollinger, Cape Girardeau, Butler, Pemiscot, Dunklin, Stoddard and New Madrid counties and the University of Missouri farm management specialists in the above counties attended a farm financial management workshop Thursday and Friday at Ramada Inn.

The two-day seminar was headed by Dr. Thomas G. Brown and Dr. Herman Workman from the extension staff of the University of Missouri - Columbia. Also attending the meeting were Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis credit supervisors.

The farm credit specialists were introduced to technical guides that individual farmers can use to determine if purchasing large harvest equipment versus using custom harvesting is more profitable. For some of the credit specialists, it was the first time they have had the opportunity to obtain the very latest data on comparative costs analysis of various livestock operations, profitability of crop production using the current crop budgets for the Bootheel area, and the data on troubleshooting analysis of a farm business.

Farm credit workshops of this nature are a must to keep up with the pace of the fast changes that are taking place in farming in Southeast Missouri, and they point up the necessity of accurate farm records.

Attending the sessions were: E. B.Nace of Portageville, Marvin Faucett and Bob Montgomery of Perryville, Roy Hager of Greenville, Richard McIntosh of Benton, farm management specialists; Dr. Thomas G. Brown and Dr. Herman Workman of Columbia, extension service staff; Sam Lewis, state supervisor and John G. Gray, loan analyst, both of St. Louis; and PCA credit specialists Earl Bullington, Terry Rollins and Robert Garrett of Caruthersville; Lawson Brent and Kelly Wright of Kennett; Robert A. Wright, Scott Waters, Gordon Hill, Kenneth D. Williams and Kenneth D. Walters of Sikeston; Bill Settles and Tom Love of Dexter; Curtis Robb and Clay Marsh of Poplar Bluff; Rudy Breezeel of Advance; Jim Jones of Jackson; Ray Edmonds and Bill Chambers of Charleston; and Fred Alexander of Portageville.

Local farm wives express feelings about food prices

By PAT GROJEAN

Farm wives in the Sikeston area, as well as nationwide, are finding themselves caught halfway between the housewife's and the farmer's points of view concerning high food prices.

Most farm wives contacted in a telephone survey conducted by The Daily Standard believe food prices are justified and are not out of line compared with the price of everything else on the market.

Several farmer's wives would not comment, saying they didn't want to get involved, or were too caught up in the middle of the situation. One wife even said it depended on which group she was with as to how she felt.

Mrs. Carl Todt of Sikeston thinks food is still a bargain, especially compared with other things.

Mrs. Glen Barks said "I don't like to pay high prices either, but I feel that the farmer's part is just catching up."

Mrs. Lewis Martin of Kewanee sympathizes with the cattle raisers. She feels they are finally getting the prices they should be getting.

"I can't complain too much... I go right on buying it."

"I don't think the price of meat is any more out of proportion than anything else," Mrs. Jewel Blalack of Sikeston stated.

"This is the first time farmers have had good prices on their beef," Mrs. Robert Scherer of Bell City said. She added that farmers are not the ones causing high prices and that everything is up, not just groceries.

Meat is the best bargain a woman can get," Mrs. Colie Taylor of Morley said.

Mrs. Albert Peters Jr. of Bertrand said, "I don't like seeing the high prices any more than anyone else, but I'm glad to see the farmers getting a fair shake." She added that the boycotts made her mad. If it was just food that was becoming more expensive, it would be different, she explained.

Mrs. Jimmy Bishop of Dogwood said, "I'm not griping. People don't stop to consider what we are having to pay for machinery," she added. "This is really the first year we have had decent prices... As long as everything else is expensive, I don't mind paying for what I eat."

"I think it is just the cost of living," Mrs. Peter Myers of Sikeston said. "The price of food has gone up just like everything else." She is quite concerned, not only for the farmer, but for the whole economy. She added that people could cut back on other luxuries, but must have food.

Farmer's wives know how much expense must go into getting meat ready for market and, therefore, have a different point of view than women who have lived in the city most of their lives.

One former city girl, Mrs. Albert Reifschneider, who now lives on a farm in Lamar, Colo., wrote to Newsweek magazine.

In the April 30 issue of Newsweek, she said "Never before have I felt so much anger for my fellow man... The reason is the new ceiling on the price of beef, pork and lamb.

"Housewives must have their priorities confused because they don't complain about the high cost of cigarettes or the frequent trips to the beauty shop," she said.

"There are no ceiling prices on tractors, combines or other machinery that we need in order to do a good job farming," she said.

"Do you realize a good tractor costs almost as much as some of your homes do? Do you see a ceiling on the price of lumber to build your new homes with? Do you see a ceiling on your wages?... Well then, why, America, is there a ceiling just on beef, pork and lamb." Mrs. Reifschneider wrote.

Nationwide, farmer's wives have taken a stand to explain to the consumer the costs involved in producing food. In Kansas, as well as other states, a delegation of farmer's wives went to Washington, D.C. last month to present their case against rolling back farm prices to representatives, senators and others.

The American Automobile Association was formed in 1902, with consolidation of nine earlier clubs.

What to get if cyst nematodes got more soybeans than you did last year. If your soybean yields weren't what you expected last year . . . if the young plants were wilted, stunted and yellowed . . . then chances are you have soybean cyst nematodes. And this year you need FUMAZONE* brand soil fumigant. Apply this low-cost nematicide once—preplant or at planting—then plant your favorite soybean variety. And that's all it takes to hit soybean cyst nematodes right where they live—effectively and economically. Your farm chemicals dealer has FUMAZONE and all the information you need to control soybean cyst nematodes. Just remember to consult and observe all the precautions on the product label. Grow Big with Dow.

Dyanap® stops it!
If you're a soybean or peanut grower, you recognize this Troublemaker. It robs your crop of sun and moisture. Chokes up harvesting equipment. Steals your profits! You need Double-Action Dyanap.
Dyanap combines a contact weed killer and a pre-emergence herbicide. Kills seedling weeds on contact, when you apply it. Then stays around to knock out late germinating weeds for up to 6 weeks.
Dyanap does its job, then disappears . . . with no trace of harmful residue. Come in and get your supply of Dyanap by Uniroyal . . . the herbicide that silences the Troublemakers!

DALLAS, Tex.— Two students from Sikeston will be among those receiving degrees at the 58th commencement of Southern Methodist University here Sunday afternoon, May 20.

Some 2,500 degrees, including more than 1,000 advanced degrees, will be conferred during the 2 p.m. ceremony in Moody Coliseum by SMU President Paul Hardin.

That total, the largest in the University's history, includes the August and December graduates as well as those who completed their work earlier this month.

John E. Hough, of 201 W. Wakefield, will receive the bachelor of business administration; and Elizabeth Blue Montgomery will receive the bachelor of arts in physical education.

Realtor Week is set for May 20-26

Serving the real estate needs of all America will be emphasized by the Sikeston Board of Realtors May 20-26, as part of the national observance of Realtor Week.

With the theme, "Pride in, respect for, the property of America," Realtor Week activities will seek to increase public awareness and appreciation for the American system of real estate ownership.

"One of the fundamental strengths of our society is the ownership of real property," Jeanette Waldman, president of the Sikeston Board of Realtors, said. "Evidence of this fact is the ownership by nearly seven out of 10 American families of their own home -- a record equalled by few nations."

The Sikeston board is one of 1,600 local boards and state associations of the National Association of Realtors, to which the 110,000 Realtors of America belong.

Earl Browder To Appear In 'NBC Reports' Special On American Communism

Tuesday, May 22- 9-10 P.M.

Earl Browder, who was head of the American Communist Party in the 1930s and early 1940s, makes an appearance in "American Communism Today," a one- hour "NBC Reports" special to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Tuesday, May 22 (9—10 p.m.).

Mr. Browder, who will be 82 on May 20, now lives in Princeton, N.J., with one of his sons. All three of his sons are university professors of mathematics.

In 1936 and 1940, Mr. Browder was the Party's candidate for President. By the mid- 40s, he headed what appeared to be an Americanized party. "He is the man who called Communism '20th century Americanism'," Thomas Tomizawa, the program's producer, says. "In fact, he put an end to the Communist Party, which was transformed into a more congenial- sounding group called the Communist Political Association. That act of dissolution in 1944 sealed his fate as a Communist."

The program focuses chiefly on the Party's activities today. Since the late 1950s, when its death warrant was practically signed, the Party has staged a comeback; today its members are active in antiwar, labor and racial fields, as well as being involved in women's liberation and the Irish movement.

Frank McGee, host of NBC- TV's "Today," is the reporter. Eliot Frankel is the executive producer.

Gilford Switches from Comedy To Serious Role in 'Save the Tiger'

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With his eyes closed, his face serene, actor Jack Gilford seems to be asleep. Suddenly the face erupts. An eye pops open. A cheek puffs out. Then the other eye, and then the other cheek. Gilford looks exactly like a pot of split pea soup coming to a boil.

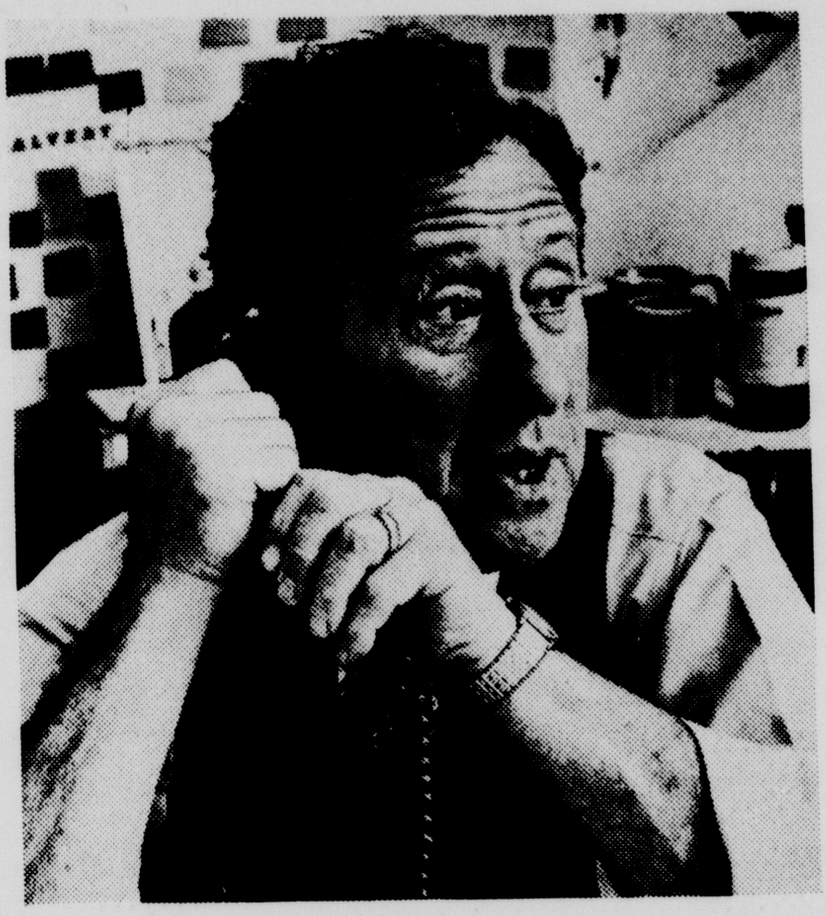
Which is what the rubber-faced Gilford wants to look like. He explains, with a laugh, "Ever since I was a kid, I've seen faces in things — like in a pot of soup. And I'd imitate what I saw. My father thought I was strange. But my mother would tell him, 'Don't worry. He'll get well.'"

Gilford, who got into show business by appearing at amateur nights around New York City during the 1930s, points out, "I was a stand-up comedian for 17 years before I got into acting. I'd have imitations in my routines. I could be a slot machine or, maybe, a teletype sending news in different languages. I even had a routine that showed a day in the private life of a golf ball."

While comedy, perhaps, is what he is best known for, Gilford points out that he has appeared in serious roles on stage, screen and television. "My first theatrical role was in 'The World of Sholem Aleichem,' and I played a tragic character called Bontche Schweig. I also played serious parts in 'The Diary of Anne Frank' and 'Cabaret.'"

The easygoing actor's latest serious role is in the film "Save the Tiger," in which he appears as the partner of a man who determines to burn down one of their buildings in order to raise money to save their troubled business.

Asked which he preferred, the comic or the serious, Gilford says, "If you pressed me, I'd say the comic." But, he quickly adds, "the fact that I do both is a good way of getting asked to do parts. Actually many parts have a little bit of both in them, and I can do both. I guess, though, it's easiest for me to see the comic side of life, and it is more satisfactory for me to hear a laugh response from an audience than the meaningful silence attached to a dramatic role."



JACK GILFORD, a stand-up comedian for 17 years before he became an actor, plays a serious role in his new film, "Save the Tiger."

Gilford, who prefers not to discuss his age other than to say that "I think of myself as post-adolescent," says "I prefer working" when asked which medium he prefers to appear in — screen, stage or TV. But, he adds, "If you pressed me, I'd say I like the stage because I like to hear the audience. Those people keep you aware of how well you are doing or whether you are doing well at all.

"When I see myself I always feel I could have done better. On the stage you can do better. I enjoy long runs because you can keep improving as the play goes along. By the time the sixth month of a play rolls around I've deepened my whole role."

Gilford currently is involved in playing at dinner theaters around the country. He says he also hopes to fit a regular stage role into his schedule.

"I'm very busy," he laughs. "But it's nice being asked to do jobs."

Federal court rules

State abortion law unconstitutional

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A three-judge federal court panel says Missouri's law on abortions is unconstitutional.

The state statute says an abortion is a felony unless it is required to save the life of the mother or of the unborn child. There are different penalties for the death of a "quick" and "unquick" fetus.

"There can be no question that this Missouri statute is unconstitutional under the teachings of the two Supreme Court cases which we were mandated to consider," the panel stated in its decision.

The judges were Floyd R. Gibson of the 8th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals; Elmo B. Hunter and William R. Collison of district court.

The panel's ruling was in a case entitled "Rodgers vs. Danforth," in which nine Missouri citizens challenged the constitutionality of the law and the position of John C. Danforth, state attorney general. Danforth, in several informal statements, upheld the Missouri abortion law, although he advised prosecutors not to enforce it until the federal courts ruled on its constitutionality.

The federal panel said the attorney general's argument was that the Supreme Court did not determine "whether an unborn child is human life."

"This court finds that the Supreme Court decision completely contradicts this argument," the panel added, citing the high court's language stating "We need not resolve the difficult question of when life begins."

"No statement could be clearer. Whether life begins at conception, at quickening, at viability, or at birth, the court held the resolution of this question would not affect the decision," the panel stated.

"In this case the attorney general has not given 'full recognition' for 'credence' to the ruling of the Supreme Court," the panel said.

The plaintiffs included four physicians, three clergymen and two married women.

The doctors were Samuel U. Rodgers and Dan L. Berger of Kansas City, David Rothman of St. Louis and David Hall of Columbia. They contended the state law prevented them from praticing medicine in "its wisest and most healthful manner."

The clergymen were Raymond B. Bragg and Robert H. Craft of Kansas City, and Rabbi Elvin D. Rubin of St. Louis. They said they were not able to counsel effectively on the alternative of abortion to continued pregnancy.

The women, Mrs. Susan Halverstadt and Mrs. Sally Steinbach of Kansas City, said the law prevented family planning.

Their case was filed originally in federal court in 1970. The three-judge panel dismissed the case last September, saying the law had not been tested in state courts.

In court system

Bar proposes change

The Missouri Bar made public Friday a proposal to substantially revise the state's laws on the judiciary, which the bar's court modernization committee spent two years in drafting.

The plan, which has been neither approved nor disapproved, has been sent to bar members for comments and suggestions.

A public meeting is scheduled June 8 at 2 p.m. at Ramada Inn for lawyers and other interested persons of this area to explain the proposed judicial article.

Also released Friday was a copy of a minority report, which was offered as a substitute plan for revision of the state's judicial article.

The committee proposal would abolish special courts and special classes of judges and create a uniform, state-supported judiciary under the control of the state Supreme Court.

A judicial council would be set up to create or alter judicial circuits, including the addition or deletion of judgeships for circuit and appellate courts. The legislature performs this function at present.

The council would present a yearly state judicial budget to the legislature. An independent judicial salary commission is recommended to set judicial salaries and retirement benefits.

Merit selection of judges would be maintained, but for the Appellate Judicial Commission the attorney general would appoint the members, rather than the governor. The governor would still select judges from nominees chosen by the commission.

Merit selection would be extended to all trial judges, with the selection of trial judges by a circuit commission and retention by non-partisan ballot. Mandatory retirement would be age 70.

The only mandatory appellate jurisicition for the Supreme Court would be criminal cases wherein the death penalty or life in prison is given.

A single trial court would be created with jurisdiction over cases now handled by circuit courts, courts of common pleas, St. Louis Court of Criminal Corrections, magistrate courts, probate courts and municipal courts.

Deleted from the present law would be the requirement that circuits be made of contiguous counties and that judges be residents of the circuits at the time of their selection.

The bar association hopes to present the proposed judicial article to the voters in 1974.

Bradley criticizes Olympics

Ponder is Man of Year

CHARLESTON— P.J. (Pete) Ponder was named Man of the Year Friday night at the seventh annual Man of the Year Banquet sponsored by the Lions Club at the armory.

Approximately 150 persons attended the banquet, including Bill Bradley of Crystal City, a member of the champion New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association, who was guest speaker.

Ponder, who was born in Mississippi County, is an active member in civic affairs. He was a member of the City Council for six years, serving one year as mayor, and was a member of Chamber of Commerce board of directors. He is chairman and long-time member of the Industrial Development Committee and was chairman of the United Fund.

He is a past Kiwanis Club member and serves as board member and youth counselor of the United Methodist Church. He served as a scoutmaster for 10 years and was scout commissioner for several years. He was also chairman of scout transportation.

He was an honorary colonel on the staff of former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, and in April he was elected to serve on the City Council.

He is owner of Ponder Chevrolet and Buick Co.

Hearnes introduced Bradley, a former Rhodes scholar who is extremely interested in Missouri politics. Bradley said a young person just beginning in politics can admire Hearnes "not for what he has talked about, but for what he has done." He said he hopes Hearnes will serve again in public office.

Bradley's brief speech focused on the Olympic games. Bradley was a member of the 1964 U.S. Olympic basketball team which won the gold medal at the Tokyo games. Citing unfair practices in past games, Bradley listed five changes that should be made to improve the games in the future

First, he said discrimination against capitalistic countries must end. He further stated that team sports should be abolished. "There must be a thrust away from nationalism. It's easy to play war games. The original Olympics were held for individuals to compete among themselves."

Thirdly, Bradley said we must "clean up our home", meaning the United States Olympic Committee. The U.S. effort is paid for by the people and occasionally institutions. Bradley said the committee should be made to give an accounting of how the money is spent.

He said the selection of coaches and officials should be open and above board. "We must get the most able coach, the most able administrator."

Fourthly, the Olympics should be more participant oriented. The games should be extended to a two- to-three month period. Bradley believes gold medals should be given only to those who beat Olympic records, and that the medal ceremony be held at the end of the Olympics. "The person should have the opportunity to receive the medal as do college graduates in the mail or receive it at the awards presentation ceremonies.

The last change Bradley would make is that the games would be permanently located in the country in which they originated and be financed by industrialized nations.

Discussion of these changes should begin, Bradley stated, and the alternatives should be studied.

"The hope for '76 must begin now. I hope you'll consider it."

The 29-year-old bachelor graduated from Crystal City High in 1961, and was an All-American basketball player for two years at Princeton University. After graduation from Princeton in 1965, Bradley went to Oxford University in England on a Rhodes Scholarship and received a master's degree in 1968. He joined the Knickerbockers in 1967.

Bradley is director of South Forty, a nonprofit organization involved in providing vocational and educational training for prison inmates, and is a First Lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force Reserve.

2 jailed in burglary

NEW MADRID — Two Steele men, Richard Hastings, 19, and Waymond Dunca, 22, are being held in Pemiscot County jail in Caruthersville for New Madrid County after they were caught about 4:30 a.m. Friday burglarizing the Neon Bar on Main Street in Lilbourn.

Deputy Sheriff Walter Ivy, who investigated with Lilbourn marshal Fred Roe, said Sam Dillard, owner and operator of S and A Tobacco Store next door to the bar, apprehended the men when he heard them in the building.

Dillard and Larry Joe Holtzhouser, owner of the bar, then held the men until officers arrived.

The pair had entered the building through a back door, Deputy Ivy said.

They waived preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court on a charge of breaking and entering with intent to steal. Judge Leo Hedgepeth ordered them held for Circuit Court trial under $1,000 bond each.

NO MORE BOYS
OR GIRLS SCHOOLS?

It is sad — and more than a little alarming — to read the Associated Press dispatch from Washington that "About 150 Predominently or exclusively male and female colleges, including some of the most prestigious in the nation, must explain by early summer delays in totally eliminating "sex discrimination" in admissions."

The dispatch went on to say that government "guidelines" (not orders?) have been mailed to the educational institutions in 33 states by the U. S. Office of Education. Failure to comply invites loss of all Federal "aid."

What has happened in our land to freedom of choice? Exclusively boys, and exclusively girls schools have played a major and distinguished role in the building of our country. And now we are told that what we have been doing these past 200 years is all wrong? If it was wrong for parents to decide that their sons and daughters could achieve the most by studying in an exclusively boys or girls school, why did it take so long to find out?

This latest move by the Office of Education is a prime example that the power to tax is the power to destroy freedom of choice. Earnings and income which might have been used to pay for tuition is extracted by the government in the form of taxes. That money is then sent to the schools (in the form of "aid") by the government. But now the funds carry the taint of government control over what is to be taught, who is to teach, who can be taught, and who is to be allowed to sit in the same classroom. How much longer will it be before all income is controlled and no freedom of choice will remain?

Retail advertising carries benefits which may be just as important to some merchants as increased sales volume. One valuable effect of good advertising is the increase in efficiency of a retail operation.

The manager of a booming chain of supermarkets says that he would have to more than double his employment costs if newspaper advertising were not available.

"The supermarket would not be an efficient method of retailing if advertising did not carry a big part of the sales burden. The housewife is able to buy with little assistance because she is acquainted with our products and prices when she arrives," the grocery executive said.

"When we evaluate our advertising we always consider the fact that it would take an army of salesmen to handle the questions which can be answered in one newspaper advertisement ..."

These comments do not apply to supermarkets alone. Advertising reduces selling time in any type of store. The potential buyer of an advertised product is always sold when he enters a store, he knows what he wants and where he can get it.

In fact, when man- hours saved are converted to dollars, newspaper advertising is practically free as compared to the cost of personal selling.

No wonder the consumer expects to find the best prices in stores that advertise. The stores which cut costs through advertising are able to pass the savings from modern selling methods on to their customers.

"THE GOOD OLD DAYS"

Editor, Sam Pitner, of the Carrollton Conservative, says he has a hankering to write a book someday about the times before World War II. "It seems to me," he editorialized recently, "that the end of the war was the end of an era in our country. Life has never been quite the same.

"I remember in high school wanting a job so bad that I offered to work in the local grocery store for almost nothing. I got the job — and a salary yet. Fifteen bucks a week from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily and until 10 p.m. on Saturdays. Man, did we work! There were no benefits, no Thursday afternoons off, no coffee breaks, just work. But I banked the whole fifteen bucks while living with my folks. It was sort of a status symbol in those days to have a good job and be a little independent.

"When my Dad built his home during those depression years, the best labor could be obtained for $1.25 a day. He went to Louisiana to get the kind of wood he wanted for that house, and there was lots of joking about it at the time. But that timber is as good today as it was then.

"Then the war came. They were tragic years, but we were held together by a great common bond and by a loving concern for our neighbors and friends. After the war, there was no going back to the old days, and it has never been the same and never will be. People are different, attitudes are different, goals and values have changed."

Of course, what happened was that during — and after — World War II we all got "rich"; at least, there has been a lot more money around, even if it goes in one pocket and out the other. In the days Sam Pitner speaks of, money was hard to find; if you found a little, you had a lot, and it didn't slide through your fingers like it does now. And Sam isn't the only fellow to wonder out loud if all that extra money we have floating around these days has really made us any happier!

SUPPRESSING MOVES
TO END SUPPRESSION

The right to be employed without having to join and financially support a union would seem like a fundamental liberty in this country — but it isn't. The Taft-Hartley Act coerces workers to belong to an organization that can have extensive control over their lives and livelihood — unless states specifically decide to balance the right to join with the right not to join.

Rep. Vic Downing, Bragg City Democrat, probably recognized the stranglehold that union bosses have on many legislators when he offered an amendment to a resolution that would have allowed the state's voters to decide on putting a right-to-work amendment in the state constitution.

He knew that many spineless legislators would ignore the wishes of their constituents and oppose the resolution as it existed. So he proposed that the resolution be changed to let each county decide if it wanted the right-to - work option. What could be more democratic?

But meanwhile, Rep. Earl Schlef, the Dellwood Democrat who is chairman of the House Labor Committee, had the audacity to bury a second right- to - work measure, sponsored by Downing, even further into the legislative ooze. The legislation (which is separate from the resolution and would accomplish right-to - work by legislative action instead of through an amendment to the state constitution) has been bottled up by Schlef at his committee level until now. But, just to make sure the patient is truly dead, he consigned it to further burial at the subcommittee level for "further study."

Schlef doesn't have the guts even to present the bill to a union - oriented legislature. He apparently is afraid that by some fluke the bill might be approved.

Of course, any constitutional change submitted to the voters would be passed overwlelmingly, just as any bill would be if legislators respected the wishes of their constituents - a survey by Leslie Brooks & Associates of Tulsa, Okla., last year showed 77 per cent of Missourians favor right- to -work; a national survey by the Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, J.J., showed 62 per cent of Americans favor the free choice of joining or not joining a union.

It's no wonder that legislators like Schlef want to suppress legislation to end suppression? it's no wonder they fear submitting a democratic measure to the voters for their choice in a democratic vote; and it will be little wonder if they try to buy the resolution so they won't have to vote against the constituent's wishes.

AUTO THEFT
MOVING TO
SMALL TOWNS

Always considered a big city crime in the past, auto theft is on the decrease in major population centers and a new trend, increases in small communities, has appeared.

The 1972 Uniform Crime preliminary report, recently issued by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, revealed a seven per cent reduction in country wide auto theft over the prior year. This is the first such reduction in over a decade.

The dramatic auto theft reduction in the nation's largest cities is the major contributing gactor in the large overall decrease. In cities with a population between 500,000 and one million, auto thefts in 1972 were down 11 per cent and in cities with over a million inhabitants, these thefts dropped by 14 per cent.

According to the FBI report, cities and towns in all population groups above 10,000 experienced auto theft decreases last year. The only exceptions were communities with fewer than 10,000 residents. The FBI's Crime Index Trend indicates an increase of two per cent in these small towns.

"Auto theft can be controlled," said a spokesman for a large insurance firm in commenting on the FBI report. "This has been proved over and over in public information campaigns conducted by our company and other organizations. Motorists in the larger cities where we have conducted programs have helped to reduce the auto theft rate by locking their cars and taking the keys. Now that same message must be brought to the people in the small communities."

If automobile owners will take the following precautionary steps, car thefts can be reduced, regardless of the size of the city or town:

1. When leaving your car unattended, lock the ignition, close the windows, and lock all the doors; then take your keys with you.

2. Don't give in to the impulse, found common in small towns, of leaving the engine running during quick-stop errands, thereby making your car a target for a thief.

3. At night, park in lighted, well-traveled areas, preferably near a street light.

4. Do not leave valuables where they can be seen in the car.

5. Be on the lookout for suspicious people lingering around newer cars. Alert police. Do not try to apprehend a suspicious individual.

6. Identify your own car by dropping your business card down into the door panel through the window slot or by placing a secret identifying mark somewhere on the car.

Best advice: Lock it and pocket the key.

THE WATERGATE
MENTALITY AND THE
ELLSBERG CASE

The outcome of the Pentagon Papers trial has to be one of the most outrageous anticlimaxes in the history of American justice.

For while the case against Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo is now dead (as one of the prosecuting attorneys noted sadly), the larger questions raised are not to be answered. Instead, the amoral cynicism that led to Watergate proved operative in the Ellsberg case, too. So the judge, quite properly, brought the trial to an abrupt end and the two men, accused of espionage, theft and conspiracy to defraud the government, cannot be tried again.

So that, we assume, is that, although the defendants have threatened to go ahead with some legal actions of their own, a procedure that seems wholly unnecessary. Meantime, the public is denied the judicial enlightenment that might have resulted had the trial been carried to the point of a jury verdict.

What, for example, about that foggy area of the law that is the government's system of document classification? At what point does the secrecy syndrome conflict with or threaten the First Amendment and the people's right to know?

In the minds of the jury, did publication of the papers actually give aid to the enemy, or was this stuff of past history the rightful possession of the people, not just of their government?

Questions, but no answers, and for reasons all too apparent: Because stupid, conspiratorial men saw fit to invade a psychiatrist's office; and because FBI wire taps picked up some of Ellsberg's conversations in 1969 and 1970. "Bizarre events," said Judge Byrne. Bizarre indeed, and outrageous.

Outrageous to the degree that the men who perpetrated those events displayed a total disregard for the system of justice and for the branch of government charged with carrying out that system. Yet in the end, the court let the executive branch know that it was not to be bamboozled, and that, come to think of it, must restore some of the confidence that has been lost in these frightening days of Watergate revelation.

Prior to the World Shooting Championship Matches that were held at Phoenix, Arizona, under the sponsorship of the National Rifle Association, strong antifirearms advocates opposed recognition or support of the matches by the U. S. government. It would appear that the idea behind such opposition was to further discredit private citizens and others who believe in the fundamental right of citizen gun ownership.

Fortunately, the Defense Department authorized the Army to assist in the conduct of the matches which attracted some 2,000 of the world's best rifle, pistol and shotgun shooters from some 60 foreign nations. The Navy and Air Force also contributed. Thus, although the NRA, through donations from individual members, footed all but a very small part of the million dollar cost of hosting this major international sporting event, U. S. gun owners can feel a little more secure in the knowledge that U. S. military leaders still recognize the importance of firearms training and marksmanship to U. S. prestige and security.

From the day the U. S. became a nation, our citizens have enjoyed a greater measure of freedom than any other people in history. With that freedom came certain responsibilities - respect for law and property and the exercise of the initiative and judgment required of any self-governing people. The crusade against gun ownership, in reality, has been a crusade against one of the essential features of responsible citizenship.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

New Team Working:
Nixon- Brennan Combo
First Move:
Counterattacking Powerful Meany

WASHINGTON— Reports of the President's political death are inoperative and exaggerated though they make good copy.

Certainly it's not quite normal in the White House. And breakfast is agitated and purple punctuated. But there's a return to normalcy. And normalcy means the President, in his fashion, is set for the counterattack. With Dick Nixon, it's all timing.

Take 3:20 p.m. last Tuesday. He was doing what comes naturally--- operating by gut. He telephoned George Shultz, his scrutable assistant president. It was a private talk. Could have been something about bringing down the price of lumber. And making an appointment for the next afternoon. They could have discussed labor chief George Meany who is having a ball bawling out and clobbering the President.

With labor's chief of chiefs tailgating Watergate, Mr. Nixon, it can be reported, has decided to take him on in what looks like a finish fight. Heavyweight Meany never has lost a bout, but the man who hasn't lost one hasn't fought one. So it appears that the labor chief is the first of the major forces the President has decided to tackle in this tragic turmoil.

Meany's basic strength is the building and construction trades--- the so- called hard hats. In May 1970, they came out of the iron and woodwork to rally to Mr. Nixon. Today, almost exactly three years later, the Presdient is turning to them again. His business agent is Labor Secretary Pete Brennan, who is slugging it out with Meany and is using some of the fastest political footwork I've encountered.

There's no doubt Pete is running interference for Dick Nixon. When Meany accused Brennan, former hard- hat leader, of selling out, the President said:

"Pete Brennan never sells out on anything."

After Meany slashed at the President's foreign policy during a speech at the Congressional Medal of Honor Society dinner recently, especially on foreign trade policy (which brought a letter of apology to the President from the society's leader), Brennan told the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, "Now that the President has brushed the cobwebs out of our foreign policy and opened doors to Russia and China, we see the chance of great new markets for the products of American factories and farms."

When Meany beat a tattoo against President Nixon's foreign trade policy, Brennan went up the hill to testify that the "facts do not support (the charge that)... imports cause large- scale unemployment... (Imports) do, of course, cause some job displacements, but I think we should not confuse these adjustment problems with the problem of large- scale unemployment."

Thus, Pete hit Meany in one of his most sensitive programs, the passage of the Burke—Hartke bill to control overseas investments and management of the nation's major corporations such as GE, GM, Ford and ITT.

"Burke- Hartke," it should be understood, is the name of the game for labor for the next few years. Meany and steel union chief Abe Abel and electrical and electronics union leader Paul Jennings have charged that imports have cost America over a million jobs. And labor papers have begun shouting editorially, "So long, Pete" and "Pete, quit!"

Add this to the new minimum wage fight (Republican Congressmen now are negotiating directly with the AFL— CIO lobbyist Ken Young on whether there should be a $2- an- hour minimum or $2.20 immediately) and you have another round of battle. Meany began charging Brennan with sellout after Pete differed with him about sub- minimums for young workers.

And then came the big Israeli Silver Anniversary testimonial dinner to the Teamsters' general president Frank (Fitz) Fitzsimmons on May 10. Pete Brennan, scoffing at reports he now carries a pistol, was right out front. He jabbed all through the appetizer and main course. He showed the flag, as the British say. Meany hates Fitz. The Teamsters' chief thinks even less of Meany. But there was the President's Secretary of Labor Brennan right alongside Fitz with other Cabinet members that night in the gay Washington Hilton main ballroom.

Pete added injury to insult by announcing that the workers don't want a price freeze--- for which Meany has called in a hundred statements.

And as Fitz got the Israel Silver Anniversary Award, "for service in the cause of Israel's development," Brennan said of the top Teamster on whom Meany had just declared war in the California fields: "He's a real man. He's got guts and he's shown it and I'm happy we're both Americans and both Irish."

Peter Brennan of Hell's Kitchen was telling it like it is for him and President Nixon. The President approved. Could be he prompted it.

Brennan speaks for the President--- with the advice and consent and encouragement of Dick Nixon. Look at this crossfire multidimensionally. It's Dick and Pete. They're close friends. Their relationship goes far beyond labor relations.

Brennan, as the No. 1 hard hat, put the "troops" into the street to save the President's policies three years ago. He's on the same warpath now, though he's now in the Cabinet. The President sanctions this confrontation with Meany, easily one of the nation's most powerful men now, if not the most powerful. The President has felt the whiplash and razor edge of this power.

If the President were inoperative would he tackle Meany? If Dick Nixon were contemplating resignation, or the White House weren't functioning, would he take on the nation's most powerful political machine--- Meany's? Certainly Watergate actually has just begun to stink.

Certainly Dick Nixon is in weird trouble, yes. Inoperative, no.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Martha

WASHINGTON — Women across the country have bombarded us with questions about Martha Mitchell. Is the Nixon administration trying to "put her away" for speaking out? Will she stand by her indicted husband, ex- Attorney General John Mitchell? What is she really like?

John and Martha Mitchell began their life together rather suddenly. "John just walked in one morning and asked for a divorce," his former wife, Betty, has said. The divorce was granted in Reno on December 19, 1957. Less than a week later, John and Martha exchanged vows in Elkton, Md., a border town then known for its quickie marriages.

The bride, mother of a 10-year- old son, got her divorce three months earlier in Miami. She hired a private detective, William Poler, to snoop on her former husband. In court, the detective testified at one point that Martha "was neurotic. Excuse the expression. She was sick and all mixed up."

Her former husband, Clyde Jennings, has described her personality as volatile. "She would have a few drinks and talk down to people," he said. "She gave the headwaiters a bad time, taxi drivers, doormen, anyone who was menial. It was an insecurity problem."

Her famous late- night phone- calls got a rise out of Jennings. "It was neighborhood stuff then," he said."now she has a national forum."

As she has loudly complained, a security guard ripped out her phone and gave her a tranquilizer injection in the bottom in June 1972. Friends of John Mitchell say the guard was merely following instructions. Allegedly, she was close to a nervous breakdown and Mitchell wanted to keep her quiet. Those who know Martha say her thoughts are always at the tip of her tongue and she has few inhibitions.

A few days ago, we spoke to Mitchell about his irrepressible wife. He swore to us that he left public life to save their marriage and that they are now getting along happily. For her part, Martha has loudly protested her husband's innocence and has shown every sign of standing by him.

But friends of the Mitchells tell us the marriage is breaking up. "If John goes to prison," predicts one intimate, "Martha will pack her bags and clear out."

But no one really knows, from day to day, what Martha Mitchell will do next.

FBI, JR.: Antipoverty czar Howard Phillips, who has been blocked by the courts from dismantling his own agency, has turned it, meanwhile, into a miniature FBI to spy on the poor.

His chief inspector is Eric Biddle, an ex-CIA man, who has surrounded himself with former professional snoops from the FBI, CIA, Army intelligence and police security squads.

Our own spies have shown us the confidential personnel forms of seven "consultants," known irreverently inside the agency as the Magnificent Seven, who helped Biddle guide his two dozen inspectors. This small force, like the seven who oversaw them, is loaded with ex- FBI types.

Meet the Magnificent Seven:

-- RAY McCONNON: He served more than 13 weeks with the CIA as an intelligence analyst, also did investigative work for the House Internal Security Committee. On his data sheet, Biddle wrote: "Investigative experience is necessary for this work. Subject has requisite investigative experience." Despite Biddle's confidence in him, McConnon proved to be such an embarrassment on his first assignment to Louisville, Ky., that his consultant job was terminated immediately upon his return to Washington. He created an incident, say our sources, over the discovery of an Angela Davis poster taped to an employe's wall. McConnon would tell us only: "I have no squawk. There was no racist incident."

-- PETER SPALDING: Until last January, he was engaged in "planning, briefing and coordination of investigations with the FBI and the CIA" for Army intelligence.

-- EARL MORGAN: In the early 1950s he "directed activities of employes in the fields of counterespionage, countersubversion, personnel security investigations and security and surveys and inspections." From 1965 to 1972, he worked in Army counterintelligence.

-- GERALD CRAWFORD: He put in over 20 years in Army intelligence handling "security investigations, counterintelligence services and sensitive classified operations." He recently quit the government to take an investigative job in New Jersey.

-- RENE FRANCAZI: He had "over 30 years experience as an investigator" for Army intelligence, retired as a full colonel in 1970. He has now left the antipoverty agency.

-- THOMAS FITZPATRICK and ROBERT HILDENBRANDT: Both are ex- police supersleuths from California. Fitzpatrick was director of intelligence for the San Francisco Police Department; Hildenbrandt was Modoc county's chief deputy sheriff in charge of investigations.

What's the Law?

The lolly pop

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

While Mr. Dinkle couldn't tell you the value of an education, he certainly could tell you the cost. Based upon his son's agreement to repay him, he sent his son through college and dental school and it cost plently. Consequently, after his son had gathered together enough magazines to open his office and enought patients to read them. Mr. Dinkle requested repayment. His son, however, refused to acknowledge that he owed his father a single penny.

"I've heard of kids working their way through college," Mr. Dinkle told his son, "but working a father through college is absolutely wrong. When you graduated from high school at 18 you promised to repay me if I sent you to dental school and you promised again when you graduated from college at 22. Now, I insist that you keep your promise."

"Sorry," was his son's answer, "but you had no legal obligation to send me anywhere. When a father chooses to educate his son, he does so out of the goodness of his heart. Consequently, while you've been a real lollypop, and I appreciate it, I owe you nothing."

Feeling more like a sucker than a lollypop, Mr. Dinkle sued his son for repayment.

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a son can be held liable for the cost of his higher education paid for by his father where he agrees to so repay his father and ratifies that agreement after he reaches his majority. In this case, concluded the judge, Mr. Dinkle's son agreed to reimburse Mr. Dinkle and ratified that agreement after he reached the age of 21.

Ann Landers

Heart patient wants to join wife swappers

Dear Ann Landers: I have read the comments about rude salespeople, waitresses, telephone operators, etc. I wonder if the complainers realize how they come across to others?

I've encountered many snippy salespeople and an equal number who are friendly and considerate. The same goes for bank tellers, parking lot attendants and cashiers. I've discovered that most people react to the way I treat THEM.

If I've had a bad day I have a tendency to be abrupt and impatient. People react to my impatience and I get treated the same way. So I concentrate on being pleasant, no matter what kind of day I've had. Before long I notice that my attitude is contagious.

When I encounter rudeness I say to myself, "Maybe he is having a hard time." I've never met a person whose life is 100 per cent trouble- free. Have you?--- Foreman In Flint

Dear Foreman: Your letter embodies a philosophy so simple it seems unworkable. But it does work, and it is the never- failing key to compassion.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a professional man in his late 40s. Throughout our marriage he had always been exceptionally kind, considerate, and highly moral. Several months ago he suffered a severe heart attack. Today he is a different person. I irritate him and the children irritate him. He demands our devotion, yet he rebuffs us, goes off by himself, is sullen and moody, and, worst of all, he has now insisted that we join a couple-swapping group.

His doctor treats the "change" casually and says, "Be patient." (He doesn't know about the latest demand.) I love my husband dearly but I can't cope with his new personality. In his present state of mind I'm afraid to suggest counseling. Yet our whole marriage is dissolving. What can I do?-- Mrs. Desperate

Dear Mrs.: Go back to your husband's doctor and give him ALL the facts. Your husband has undergone a serious personality change. A neurological examination would do no harm and it might cast a new light on the situation.

Are you, or someone you care about messing around with drugs-- or considering it? Are all drugs bad? What about pot--- in moderation; Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs," separates the facts from the fiction. For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill, plus a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope, (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Dogs, Hawks upset

VAN BUREN — The Hayti Indians rode the big bat of Danny White and pitching of Bob Alexander to a 7-1 victory over the Van Buren Bulldogs while lefthander Jim Noon pitched the Illmo- Scott City Rams past the Kelly Hawks 4-1 in 10 innings here Friday afternoon in the semi- finals of the State Regional baseball tournament.

Van Buren got off to a good start against winning pitcher Bob Alexander as shortstop Darrell Marshall of the Bulldogs wholloped a homerun in the bottom of the first inning but the rejoicing was short lived as the Indians came roaring back in the top of the second inning and put together four singles to knock in five runs before the side could be retired and the Indians led 5-1 and were never threatened after that as Alexander and White held the previously undefeated Bulldogs to two singles after the first inning. Alexander hurt his ankle sliding into third base in the fifth inning and White took over and held the Bulldogs in check the last two frames.

Danny White was the hitting star with three hits in three times at bat and three runs batted in. Carl Nicholson was the starting and losing pitcher for Van Buren. Nicholson fanned seven in the losing cause and Alexander and White combined for seven strikeouts.

The second game of the doubleheader was a cliffhanger from the beginning until the tenth frame.

Losing pitcher Kenny Urhahn and southpaw Jim Noon hooked up in a classic duel with Noon getting the better of things in the end.

Kelly jumped on top first as the Hawks started the game in the bottom of the first frame after Urhahn had set the Rams down without a run in the top half of the first.

Rich Urhahn led the inning off with a walk and was sacrificed to second. A fielders choice pushed him to third from where he scored on Jeff Jackson's single.

ISC tied the game in the top of the third when second baseman Randy Bohn walked and stole second. On the attempt to nail the runner the ball went into centerfield where the centerfielder let the ball get through his legs and Bohn came home.

In the bottom of the third, centerfielder Robert Killian robbed Kenny Urhahn of a homerun with a leaping catch at the fence.

Noon and Urhahn had no trouble with the opposing batters until the top of the tenth when Randy Bohn led the inning off with a single and went to second on a fielders choice.

With runners on first and third with one out the Rams were given an intentional pass to load the bases. Urhahn fanned the next batter and with two out the strategy backfired as Urhahn walked Linn Ward, forcing in, what turned out to be the winning run and Vince Shafer followed Ward with a walk forcing in the second run in the inning, then Glynn Ward singled to drive in the third run and the fourth runner was thrown out to end the inning.

Noon set the Hawks down in the bottom of the tenth without any trouble. Noon fanned 15 Hawks and gave up only two base hits. Urhahn struckout 13 and allowed five hits.

Hayti will send Randy Gardner to the mound Saturday afternoon against the ISC Rams' Don Crews.

Hayti or ISC will represent Southeast Missouri in the semi- finals of the State baseball tournament in Springfield, next week.

TRCC to nationals

POPLAR BLUFF— Three Rivers Community College is bidding to become a dominating factor in the Junior College sports ranks after their Raiders baseball team claimed the Central District tournament title at McAlister, Kansas to qualify for the nationals at Grand Junction, Colo., May 26.

It marks the first trip for the TRCC baseball men to the national playoffs. TRCC's basketball team finished fifth in the nation back in March and two seasons ago claimed fourth.

The big plus to the Raiders teams is the use of area athletes. 75 percent of the teams are made up of Bootheel school boy stars.

Oran's Bradley Emerson and Randy Smith of Arbyrd were named to the all-central district all- star squad.

Pitching paved the way for the Raiders victories with Mike Hill, Randy Smith, Mark Hildebrand and Mike Webber handling the chores for TRCC.

Eight teams will compete in the nationals. The Raiders defeated St. Johns of Winfield, Kan., Becone of Meskogee, Okla., and Lamar Junior College of Lamar, Colo.

It was announced this week that the Raiders, with a 25- 11 record, received the schools first national ranking. TRCC was rated ninth in the final season poll. San Jacinto College of Pasadena, Texas is tied for first with Gulf Coast Community College of Panama City, Florida.

Oran wins pair

ORAN — Oran won their fifth game of the season against one loss in the SEMO softball league by defeating Kelso here Friday night 5-4.

Henry Trankler picked up the win in relief for Oran and Charley Schwartz took the loss in relief.

Oran banged out 12 hits while Kelso was held to six. Terry Mobley had three hits for Oran including a leadoff homerun in the bottom of the first. Mike Wheeler also hit a roundtripper in the second.

Oran scored two runs in the first and added two more in the second. Kelso fought back with two in the sixth and tied the game in the top of the seventh with two more. Oran ended the game with a single run in the bottom of the seventh.

Oran defeated the Benton Aces Wednesday night in a SEMO softball league game 2-1.

Oran is 4-0 for the year and two runs in the first inning was enough for Don Robert, the winning pitcher. Robert fanned 16 Aces enroute to the victory. Ray Scherer struckout seven in taking the loss for Benton.

Oran scored the two runs with the help of a hit, fielders choice, walk, stolen base, and an error. Benton scored their run on a hit and error.

Charlie Urhahn and Kirby Hahn had the only hits for Oran. Benton was held to only three safties.

Oran plays a doubleheader with Flat River Saturday night.

Rightfielder Larry Scott banged out two hits and knocked in three of the five runs.

Vanduser plays league leading Oran Wednesday night.

Sikeston wins pair

Stop further damage by cleaning

By EDWARD J. CONSTIEN,
Extension Agricultural Engineer

Complete and early cleaning of farm machinery partially or completely covered by flood waters will stop further damage to the machinery. Before trying to operate any machinery inspect it carefully and remove all dirt and debris.

Bearings should receive special attention. Silt and clay particles carried in flood waters are small enough to get between bearings and other close fitting parts. Sealed bearings should be closely checked. Some bearings can be cleaned by forcing grease through them until a considerable amount has oozed out from the sides of the bearings. Most bearings, however, should be taken apart and cleaned with kerosene or a solvent. Fine silt will cause rapid wear if it is not removed.

Chains, gears, and sprockets should be cleaned and then covered with a light oil. Exposed metal parts such as plow moldboards should be cleaned and recovered with a rust preventive. Check sickles on combines and mowers for silt and debris.

After cleaning the bearings and other parts carefully turn over the turning parts of the machine by hand to make sure they work freely.

Now: new nematode protection for Southern soybeans.

Nemagon® soil fumigant helps you bring in a healthy, high-yield soybean crop—by controlling nematodes in your field.

Nematodes can cause yellowing, stunting, and wilting. And they can cut your soybean yields drastically.

Nemagon helps keep yields high because it stops nematodes before they can damage your soybeans. Nemagon gives you top-notch control of nematodes—including the tough customers like soybean cyst nematode and root knot nematode.

What's more, Nemagon is economical. Just one application per season—either pre-plant or at planting—will give you effective control.

Nemagon goes on easy, too. You can use conventional fumigant injection equipment, or convert your present liquid fertilizer applicator or weed sprayer at a minimal cost. For more information on Nemagon—and how to convert your present equipment—contact your local dealer or Shell.

With today's high return on soybeans, don't risk big losses due to nematodes. Keep your yields up with Nemagon.

Shell Chemical Company, Agricultural Division. 5575 Poplar Avenue, Memphis, Tennessee 38117.

Always read the Nemagon label before using and follow directions carefully.

Post-planting check

Successful farming due to character, desire, ability

By NADINE S. TOWNSEND

PARMA— How does a young man who started as a "scratch" farmer-- no land, no machinery and no money to invest--- in five years develop a full- scale farming operation of 650 acres, acquire a sizeable amount of costly machinery, buy a home and also 80 acres of land?

In 1967, the only things young Oscar Sapp, then 22 and newly married, had going for him were his training and experience gained from being reared on a farm, his character, desire and ability to farm and his need, which qualified him for 100 per cent financial backing by Farmers Home Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Following his marriage to Donna Hoggard of Parma on Aug. 12, 1967, Sapp was able to rent three tracts of land totaling 440 acres. FHA then provided a $12,500 loan, repayable in seven years, for him to buy two tractors, two discs, two cultivators, two breaking plows and a planter. Also, a crop loan was made for seed, fertilizer and family living expense.

Three years later, Sapp obtained a $6,500 FHA loan for a chisel plow and another tractor, to add to equipment he had bought between 1968 and 1970, consisting of two cotton pickers, a combine, four cotton trailers, a grain buggy, ton and a half truck, six- row hipper, rotary hoe and a premerge outfit.

In 1969, a FHA home ownership loan was made to enable the Sapps to buy a modern two bedroom home on Townley road in Parma.

With a $6,500 FHA loan in 1972, Sapp acquired some necessary irrigation equipment, a planter, two cultivators, a tractor and a flip- over plow.

As a result of Sapp's successful farming practices and industriousness, he has maintained a good credit rating and, in addition to these loans, has repaid annually crop loans advanced by FHA for seed, fertilizer and family living.

In April, Sapp took the first step to achieve what every farmer strives for-- his own farm land. Using a $23,000 FHA loan and $14,000 borrowed from another source, he was able to buy his first 80 acres three miles southeast of Parma.

His farming acreage this year is within a five- mile radius. He has 70 acres of wheat planted, between 30 and 40 acres of cotton which, weather permitting, will be increased to 100 acres, and the balance of land will be planted in soybeans.

The Sapps have two children, Misty Dawn, 3, and Keith Rodney, two months.

Mrs. Sapp continued her college education after marraige and graduated from Arkansas State University in Jonesboro, Ark. She taught vocal music for two years at Campbell before the birth of their son, and will teach there in the current summer school program.

The family attends the United Methodist Church in Parma, and Sapp is a member of the Masonic Lodge.

Sapp, recalling efforts to start his farm operations, shook his head in disbelief, saying, "It looked impossible to get started," then firmly stated, "my biggest help of all has been the good Lord."

Grindstaff 6th in statewide yield competition

BERNIE, Mo.— Clinton Grindstaff of Bernie has captured sixth place in the 1972 statewide irrigated corn yield contest sponsored by the National Corn Growers Association.

Grindstaff averaged 148.70 bushels per acre on his 25- acre contest plot, according to the association's certified records of the annual competition.

For his irrigation efforts Grindstaff will receive a certificate of merit. He planted P— A— G Seed Co. SX 93 hybrid seed to win his award.

Lasso® plus Lorox.*

Great solution for annual grass and broadleaf problems in soybeans.

Grasses:		Broadleaves:
Barnyardgrass	Brachiaria	Velvetleaf (Buttonweed)	Carpetweed
Crabgrass	Fall Panicum	Common Ragweed	Smartweed
Giant Foxtail	Green Foxtail	Florida Pussley	Lambsquarters
Yellow Foxtail	Witchgrass	Pigweed (Carelessweed)	Purslane
Red Rice	Goosegrass		Teaweed

Soybean growers, relax. Now you've got double-barreled protection against the annual grasses and many broadleaf weeds that can inhibit the growth of your soybeans and seriously reduce your yield.

Lasso E.C. (liquid) can be tank-mixed with Lorox 50W for use on soybeans. Together, these two herbicides will control or suppress the above annual grasses and broadleaf weeds.

As with all agricultural products, read the label carefully before using.

Financial Management Workshop

Production Credit Association representatives from Scott, Mississippi, Bollinger, Cape Girardeau, Butler, Pemiscot, Dunklin, Stoddard and New Madrid counties and the University of Missouri farm management specialists in the above counties attended a farm financial management workshop Thursday and Friday at Ramada Inn.

The two-day seminar was headed by Dr. Thomas G. Brown and Dr. Herman Workman from the extension staff of the University of Missouri - Columbia. Also attending the meeting were Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis credit supervisors.

The farm credit specialists were introduced to technical guides that individual farmers can use to determine if purchasing large harvest equipment versus using custom harvesting is more profitable. For some of the credit specialists, it was the first time they have had the opportunity to obtain the very latest data on comparative costs analysis of various livestock operations, profitability of crop production using the current crop budgets for the Bootheel area, and the data on troubleshooting analysis of a farm business.

Farm credit workshops of this nature are a must to keep up with the pace of the fast changes that are taking place in farming in Southeast Missouri, and they point up the necessity of accurate farm records.

Attending the sessions were: E. B.Nace of Portageville, Marvin Faucett and Bob Montgomery of Perryville, Roy Hager of Greenville, Richard McIntosh of Benton, farm management specialists; Dr. Thomas G. Brown and Dr. Herman Workman of Columbia, extension service staff; Sam Lewis, state supervisor and John G. Gray, loan analyst, both of St. Louis; and PCA credit specialists Earl Bullington, Terry Rollins and Robert Garrett of Caruthersville; Lawson Brent and Kelly Wright of Kennett; Robert A. Wright, Scott Waters, Gordon Hill, Kenneth D. Williams and Kenneth D. Walters of Sikeston; Bill Settles and Tom Love of Dexter; Curtis Robb and Clay Marsh of Poplar Bluff; Rudy Breezeel of Advance; Jim Jones of Jackson; Ray Edmonds and Bill Chambers of Charleston; and Fred Alexander of Portageville.

Local farm wives express feelings about food prices

By PAT GROJEAN

Farm wives in the Sikeston area, as well as nationwide, are finding themselves caught halfway between the housewife's and the farmer's points of view concerning high food prices.

Most farm wives contacted in a telephone survey conducted by The Daily Standard believe food prices are justified and are not out of line compared with the price of everything else on the market.

Several farmer's wives would not comment, saying they didn't want to get involved, or were too caught up in the middle of the situation. One wife even said it depended on which group she was with as to how she felt.

Mrs. Carl Todt of Sikeston thinks food is still a bargain, especially compared with other things.

Mrs. Glen Barks said "I don't like to pay high prices either, but I feel that the farmer's part is just catching up."

Mrs. Lewis Martin of Kewanee sympathizes with the cattle raisers. She feels they are finally getting the prices they should be getting. "I can't complain too much... I go right on buying it."

"I don't think the price of meat is any more out of proportion than anything else," Mrs. Jewel Blalack of Sikeston stated.

"This is the first time farmers have had good prices on their beef," Mrs. Robert Scherer of Bell City said. She added that farmers are not the ones causing high prices and that everything is up, not just groceries.

Meat is the best bargain a woman can get," Mrs. Colie Taylor of Morley said.

Mrs. Albert Peters Jr. of Bertrand said, "I don't like seeing the high prices any more than anyone else, but I'm glad to see the farmers getting a fair shake." She added that the boycotts made her mad. If it was just food that was becoming more expensive, it would be different, she explained.

Mrs. Jimmy Bishop of Dogwood said, "I'm not griping. People don't stop to consider what we are having to pay for machinery," she added. "This is really the first year we have had decent prices... As long as everything else is expensive, I don't mind paying for what I eat."

"I think it is just the cost of living," Mrs. Peter Myers of Sikeston said. "The price of food has gone up just like everything else." She is quite concerned, not only for the farmer, but for the whole economy. She added that people could cut back on other luxuries, but must have food.

Farmer's wives know how much expense must go into getting meat ready for market and, therefore, have a different point of view than women who have lived in the city most of their lives.

One former city girl, Mrs. Albert Reifschneider, who now lives on a farm in Lamar, Colo., wrote to Newsweek magazine.

In the April 30 issue of Newsweek, she said "Never before have I felt so much anger for my fellow man... The reason is the new ceiling on the price of beef, pork and lamb.

"Housewives must have their priorities confused because they don't complain about the high cost of cigarettes or the frequent trips to the beauty shop," she said.

"There are no ceiling prices on tractors, combines or other machinery that we need in order to do a good job farming," she said.

"Do you realize a good tractor costs almost as much as some of your homes do? Do you see a ceiling on the price of lumber to build your new homes with? Do you see a ceiling on your wages?... Well then, why, America, is there a ceiling just on beef, pork and lamb." Mrs. Reifschneider wrote.

Nationwide, farmer's wives have taken a stand to explain to the consumer the costs involved in producing food. In Kansas, as well as other states, a delegation of farmer's wives went to Washington, D.C. last month to present their case against rolling back farm prices to representatives, senators and others.

The American Automobile Association was formed in 1902, with consolidation of nine earlier clubs.

What to get if cyst nematodes got more soybeans than you did last year. If your soybean yields weren't what you expected last year . . . if the young plants were wilted, stunted and yellowed . . . then chances are you have soybean cyst nematodes. And this year you need FUMAZONE* brand soil fumigant. Apply this low-cost nematicide once—preplant or at planting—then plant your favorite soybean variety. And that's all it takes to hit soybean cyst nematodes right where they live—effectively and economically. Your farm chemicals dealer has FUMAZONE and all the information you need to control soybean cyst nematodes. Just remember to consult and observe all the precautions on the product label. 2 Sikeston students to receive degrees from Southern Methodist U.

DALLAS, Tex.— Two students from Sikeston will be among those receiving degrees at the 58th commencement of Southern Methodist University here Sunday afternoon, May 20.

Some 2,500 degrees, including more than 1,000 advanced degrees, will be conferred during the 2 p.m. ceremony in Moody Coliseum by SMU President Paul Hardin. That total, the largest in the University's history, includes the August and December graduates as well as those who completed their work earlier this month.

John E. Hough, of 201 W. Wakefield, will receive the bachelor of business administration; and Elizabeth Blue Montgomery will receive the bachelor of arts in physical education.

Top students at Portageville

Miss Nancy Painter and Miss Teresa Nowell were named as valedictorian and salutatorian of the Portageville High School 1973 graduating class.

Miss Painter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L.B. Painter, had a grade point average of 10.038 on an 11.00 point scale. She has been active in the Future Nurse's Club, National Honor Society, and the pep club and has served as Future Business Leaders of America's secretary. She was chosen to be the Business and Professional Womens Club's January Girl of the Month. She plans to attend the University of Missouri at Columbia next fall.

Miss Nowell, daughter of Mrs. Gertie Nowell and the late Darb Nowell, had a grade point average of 10.000. She has been active this year in the Future Business Leaders of America, pep club, and Future Teachers of America, also serving as vice president of the National Honor Society and as senior class treasurer. Realtor Week is set for May 20-26

Serving the real estate needs of all America will be emphasized by the Sikeston Board of Realtors May 20-26, as part of the national observance of Realtor Week.

With the theme, "Pride in, respect for, the property of America," Realtor Week activities will seek to increase public awareness and appreciation for the American system of real estate ownership.

"One of the fundamental strengths of our society is the ownership of real property," Jeanette Waldman, president of the Sikeston Board of Realtors, said. "Evidence of this fact is the ownership by nearly seven out of 10 American families of their own home -- a record equalled by few nations."

The Sikeston board is one of 1,600 local boards and state associations of the National Association of Realtors, to which the 110,000 Realtors of America belong.

Congratulations '73 Graduates

So. You've done it at last! And we're here to give three hearty cheers for all the hard work and perseverance. . . that made those diplomas possible. We're proud of you and we want you to know it. We wish you the best things life has to offer: good health, happiness, dreams come true.

Earl Browder To Appear In 'NBC Reports' Special On American Communism

Tuesday, May 22- 9-10 P.M.

Earl Browder, who was head of the American Communist Party in the 1930s and early 1940s, makes an appearance in "American Communism Today," a one- hour "NBC Reports" special to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Tuesday, May 22 (9—10 p.m.).

Mr. Browder, who will be 82 on May 20, now lives in Princeton, N.J., with one of his sons. All three of his sons are university professors of mathematics.

In 1936 and 1940, Mr. Browder was the Party's candidate for President. By the mid- 40s, he headed what appeared to be an Americanized party. "He is the man who called Communism '20th century Americanism'," Thomas Tomizawa, the program's producer, says. "In fact, he put an end to the Communist Party, which was transformed into a more congenial- sounding group called the Communist Political Association. That act of dissolution in 1944 sealed his fate as a Communist."

The program focuses chiefly on the Party's activities today. Since the late 1950s, when its death warrant was practically signed, the Party has staged a comeback; today its members are active in antiwar, labor and racial fields, as well as being involved in women's liberation and the Irish movement.

Frank McGee, host of NBC- TV's "Today," is the reporter. Eliot Frankel is the executive producer.

Gilford Switches from Comedy To Serious Role in 'Save the Tiger'

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With his eyes closed, his face serene, actor Jack Gilford seems to be asleep. Suddenly the face erupts. An eye pops open. A cheek puffs out. Then the other eye, and then the other cheek. Gilford looks exactly like a pot of split pea soup coming to a boil.

Which is what the rubber-faced Gilford wants to look like. He explains, with a laugh, "Ever since I was a kid, I've seen faces in things — like in a pot of soup. And I'd imitate what I saw. My father thought I was strange. But my mother would tell him, 'Don't worry. He'll get well.'"

Gilford, who got into show business by appearing at amateur nights around New York City during the 1930s, points out, "I was a stand-up comedian for 17 years before I got into acting. I'd have imitations in my routines. I could be a slot machine or, maybe, a teletype sending news in different languages. I even had a routine that showed a day in the private life of a golf ball."

While comedy, perhaps, is what he is best known for, Gilford points out that he has appeared in serious roles on stage, screen and television. "My first theatrical role was in 'The World of Sholem Aleichem,' and I played a tragic character called Bontche Schweig. I also played serious parts in 'The Diary of Anne Frank' and 'Cabaret.'"

The easygoing actor's latest serious role is in the film "Save the Tiger," in which he appears as the partner of a man who determines to burn down one of their buildings in order to raise money to save their troubled business.

Asked which he preferred, the comic or the serious, Gilford says, "If you pressed me, I'd say the comic." But, he quickly adds, "the fact that I do both is a good way of getting asked to do parts. Actually many parts have a little bit of both in them, and I can do both. I guess, though, it's easiest for me to see the comic side of life, and it is more satisfactory for me to hear a laugh response from an audience than the meaningful silence attached to a dramatic role."

JACK GILFORD, a stand-up comedian for 17 years before he became an actor, plays a serious role in his new film, "Save the Tiger."

Gilford, who prefers not to discuss his age other than to say that "I think of myself as post-adolescent," says "I prefer working" when asked which medium he prefers to appear in — screen, stage or TV. But, he adds, "If you pressed me, I'd say I like the stage because I like to hear the audience. Those people keep you aware of how well you are doing or whether you are doing well at all.

"When I see myself I always feel I could have done better. On the stage you can do better. I enjoy long runs because you can keep improving as the play goes along. By the time the sixth month of a play rolls around I've deepened my whole role."

Gilford currently is involved in playing at dinner theaters around the country. He says he also hopes to fit a regular stage role into his schedule.

"I'm very busy," he laughs. "But it's nice being asked to do jobs."
